

Thermoplastic AFO: Solid

Description

This is a thermoplastic ankle foot orthosis made of polypropylene. It comes in several different styles depending on the severity of the condition. It is used to treat patients who have had strokes and have developed weakness in one of their limbs (this is commonly referred to as a dropfoot deformity). It is also used to treat patients with generalized weakness from other conditions or patients with degenerative arthritis or instability in the ankle and rear foot joints.

